PREFACE

The Genealogy Department of the Albertson Public Library has been an important source of research since its organization in 1923.

The library is indebted to Captain Charles L. Albertson for the original volumes of this collection. Through the supervision of Olive Brumbaugh, who organized the library in 1923, and Clara Wendel, librarian since 1943, this department has been expanded and improved. Genealogists come from near and far to do research; visitors extend their stay, and others have made Orlando their home because of the opportunities afforded by this library.

At the present time there are 1794 volumes and 581 microcards in this collection. The following bibliography lists a valuable working collection for family lines, historic societies, and heraldry.

In the ten generations which generally take one back to his progenitor in America there are 1024 ancestors. Yet comparatively few know the maiden names of their great grandmothers, even though an eighth of their heritage and individual traits may come from these grandparents.

Recd Oct 24-1978

To those who are interested in the science and art, as Webster describes genealogy, a few hours work in the Genealogy Department will bring fascinating and rewarding results.

This Department also houses the Daughters of the American Revolution State Library and a United Daughters of the Confederacy collection.

Claudine Johnson Wallace
Genealogy Librarian, Emeritus
